My mom moved into a new condo, and I went to visit for a couple of days. Searching for a coffee cup one morning, I sighed, "It seems like I'm always looking for something in your kitchen." "That's good," Mom said. When I looked confused, she explained, "Because when you know where to look, it's time to go home."

Hydrotherapy

The use of water treatments to assist the body in fighting disease has been practiced since ancient times and in several cultures: Egypt, Greece, Rome, China, and Japan. While water is about the only way to adequately cleanse the skin from toxins, it is also a great relaxer. Just looking at a picture of the ocean, I can feel the warm sand under my feet. A person with damaged tissue can rehabilitate more quickly by gravity-reduced exercise in a swimming pool, and weightless freedom limbers arthritic joints. Is there anything more relaxing than a hot tub when winter conditions have chilled you to the bone?

While water is both cleansing and relaxing, it has a quality that folks may overlook, and that is the aspect of using contrasting water temperatures for the treatment of infective disease processes. While I do not consider myself an expert, I have both seen and received miraculous results from the proper application of water. Alternating hot and cold water treatments will help many conditions by increasing circulation. One caveat though, one should not use this method if there is broken skin, possible appendicitis, or diabetes.

One beneficial therapeutic example is an infected toe which will respond favourably to soaking for 3 minutes in a basin of hot water (heat is gradually increased according to patient's tolerance), and then a 30 second plunge into cold (ice water as tolerated). Each treatment consists of three exchanges in each basin, then a quick dry, (this is where wart or anti-fungal nail treatment would be applied as needed) and then a clean sock. This treatment can be repeated 1-4 times per day until symptoms are alleviated.

Healing requires extra water intake—both of drinking water and the Water of Life (in the form of a prayer) for healing of body, mind, and soul. Wholeness also requires extra rest, spiritually and physically. Going to bed with warm feet induces a relaxed frame of mind and body. Try it!

Health For Your Home

by Linda Franklin

This column is designed to address economical discoveries that will affect your health in a positive way.

Four students walked in halfway through the American history test my father was giving at the local community college. "Sorry," they said, "we had a flat tire."

An understanding man, Dad said that if they could all answer just one question correctly, he would give them each an "A" for the exam. The students agreed. So my father handed each one a piece of paper, placed them in four separate corners and said, "Write down which tire was flat."

My mother, a master of guilt trips, showed me a photo of herself waiting by a phone that never rings. "Mom, I call all the time," I said. "If you had voicemail, you'd know." Soon after, my brother installed it for her. When I called the next time, I got her message: "If you are a salesperson, press one. If you're a friend, press two.
