RED DRESS DAY REMEMBERS MURDERED AND MISSING INDIGENOUS WOMEN AND GIRLS

On Tuesday, May 4, the Tansi Friendship Centre hosted a small, non-gathering informational event at Spirit Park where people could remember and talk to Tansi employees about the issue of murdered and missing Indigenous women. Drummers and singers were also present. Indigenous peoples believe that when dancing songs are performed and women dance, it brings healing to spirits and themselves. The colour red is used because it is believed to be the only colour spirits can see, and by wearing red the missing spirits of the women can be called back to be laid to rest.

In Canada, Indigenous women account for 4% of the female population. Alarming, though, Indigenous women account for 16% of female homicide cases. RCMP reported in 2014 that the number of murdered and missing Indigenous women was roughly at 1200, with 1017 believed to have been killed, and the remaining 164 missing. Justin Trudeau's government promised to look into the disproportionate murders against Indigenous women and girls, but whether he has followed through on that promise is strongly debated.

Here are a few ways you can learn about the cause:

- Do an internet search for Project E-Pana. This is the name of the RCMP task force and includes the stories of dozens of women that have been murdered/are missing - Read Green River Killer - Watch Highway of Tears documentary on Prime Video - Listen to the podcast The Stolen: The Search for Connie Walker - Follow/share #MMIWG - Stop into Tansi Friendship Centre and talk to the employees there - Visit nativewomenswilderness.org

"Just ask somebody about it. Word of mouth, just talk to people. Say, 'I heard about this thing, do you know anything about it?'" And then from there, hopefully you can share information," said Tansi employee Iris DeMontigny, when asked what a person who isn't particularly tech-savvy could do.

No More Stolen Sisters sweaters can be bought at Tansi, but it's worth noting that they are in high demand and have sold out several times. The National Inquiry into Murdered and Missing Indigenous Women and Girls issued their final report on June 3rd, 2019. You can head to their website, www.mmiwg-ffada.ca, to learn more. You can read Justin Trudeau's statement on the one-year anniversary of the inquiry's final report here: pm.gc.ca/en/news/statements/2020/06/03/statement-prime-minister-one-year-anniversary-final-report-national.

Health For Your Home

by Linda Franklin

This column is designed to address economical discoveries that will affect your health in a positive way.

Food is Your Medicine

Colorful whole plant foods are designed to fight viruses! In recent tests, blueberry consumption for six weeks increased natural killer activity and reduced anti-inflammatory compounds. Cranberries and black currants had high antiviral effects against flu viruses. Mangoes, apples, citrus fruits, and broccoli contain terpenes—compounds inhibit the herpes simplex and flu viruses.

Polyphenols inhibit the ability of viruses to enter into the cells. Berries, grapes, pomegranates, beans, and nuts are loaded with polyphenols that offer virus protection. They help to improve the blood sugar and reduce diabetic complications! Good news for diabetic individuals who are prone to both viral and bacterial infections! Remember all the hype about carbs being bad for you? Maybe we should reconsider that advice—the polysaccharides and several phytochemicals from whole fruits and whole grains (good carbs) inhibit viral replication and interfere with the viruses' ability to bind to the cell receptors! Phytic acid from whole grains and legumes enhance the virus-destroying activity of the natural killer cells.

This is some fancy language that reiterates how important it is to make wise, plant-based eating choices to help keep our body in fighting condition. To read several well-documented health articles, including the one by my friend Liz Hall, containing scientific research, simple remedies and advice, go to www.wildwoodhealth.com. Often, good health is only one choice out-of-reach! Learning to love the right foods is possible, and enjoyable. Good health is worth a little self discipline, right?

...and it often happens, that if a lie be believed only for an hour, it hath done its work... Falsehood flies, and the Truth comes limping after it; so that when men come to be undeceived, it is too late; the jest is over, and the tale has had its effect: like a man, who has thought of a good repartee, when the discourse has changed; or the company parted; or like a physician, who hath found out an infallible medicine, after the patient is dead.

Peggy Geuder 1940-2021

Peggy was born to Irene Slater on August 6, 1940 in Lloydminster, Saskatchewan. Then they moved to the Salmon Arm, BC area where she grew up and did her schooling, then going on to the university in Victoria to get her teaching degree.

In 1960, Peggy's first teaching job brought her to Chetwynd to teach in a one room schoolhouse at Bond siding, where she would meet her husband Fred Geuder. She would continue to teach for 47 years. Peggy loved the Peace Region and had many adventures, and she did not want to be anywhere else.

Peggy and Fred had three children: Sharon, Sandra, and Terence. Peggy loved her family deeply and would do anything and beyond for them. Peggy enjoyed being with her sisters-in-law: Jean, Freda, Anna, Mary, and their families. Also, she enjoyed being with her mother and father in-law Mamie and Otto Wick. Peggy loved the outdoors and exploring nature. She also loved travelling with her mom to visit her brother and sister and their families.

One of Peggy's passions was working with kids. She loved teaching in Pathfinders, volunteering in any way she could, like Christmas hampers, bottle drives, walkathons, etc., anything she could do to help children out, along with Shirley Weeks and Cathy Astleford.

Peggy loved her church and God and was always there to help wherever she was needed. She never faltered in her beliefs and was greatly rewarded in all her endeavors. Peggy lived her life to the fullest and accomplished everything she set out to do.

A private family graveside service will be held for Peggy at the Tuscoola Mountain Cemetery, Chetwynd, BC. For friends so wishing, donations may be made in memory of Peggy to a children's charity of your choice.

Very Respectfully, Reynars Funeral Home & Crematorium
