BRITISH COLUMBIANS ASKED TO HELP SHAPE REFERENDUM ON ELECTORAL REFORM

British Columbians can now provide input to help shape next year's provincial referendum on electoral reform as part of the How We Vote public engagement.

Today through Feb. 28, 2018, British Columbians can visit engage.gov.bc.ca/HowWeVote to learn about the characteristics of voting systems used here and elsewhere in the world, and to provide input on key elements of the referendum — including ballot design, choice of voting systems and public funding distribution during the referendum campaign period.

"British Columbians deserve a say in the question of how we elect our members of the legislative assembly, and how our society is governed," said Attorney General David Eby, who launched the engagement in the B.C. legislature today. "I encourage everyone to visit the engagement website to learn more and participate. We want to hear from all B.C. voters."

British Columbians are encouraged to visit the website to complete an online questionnaire, provide comments and review the submissions of organizations. In the new year, more information and resources will be added to the site, including educational videos and graphics, while libraries will be provided with information kits to help engage British Columbians in advance of the fall 2018 referendum.

"This is the first step towards asking voters if they want a change from our current voting system to a system of proportional representation," said Eby. "This is about giving British Columbians the power to decide how we vote."

Quick Facts:

- The Attorney General will serve as a neutral arbiter throughout the process to ensure the referendum is conducted fairly and in accordance with B.C. law.

I walked along the edge of the lake and was treated to the crunch and rustle of leaves with each step I made. The acoustics of this season are different and all sounds, no matter how hushed, are as crisp as autumn air.

If all a bird knows is flying
But one day on the edge of a rooftop Realizes he's afraid of heights
Do his wings feel heavier Does his brain swirl around
With the vertigo
of fear—
And if all I've ever known is fear,
When I find inner peace
Will my soul grow wings?

THE FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS TEAM UP TO PRESERVE MOUNTAIN CARIBOU, STARTING WITH HERDS IN THE PEACE

The provincial and federal governments have teamed up to develop a draft conservation agreement to support the recovery of mountain caribou in BC. The agreement will start with herds in the Peace Region. The agreement aims to reverse the decline of the mountain caribou's population by supporting recovery actions for the species. Recovery actions include protecting their habitat and range planning. The provincial and federal governments plan to conclude their negotiations on the agreement following discussions with Indigenous communities and stakeholders. A final agreement is expected to be reached in the spring of 2018.
