ESCAPED CONVICT ATTEMPTED TO STEAL SEVERAL CARS IN FORT NELSON

More details have emerged around the arrest of an Alberta prison escapee and two others near Fort Nelson on the morning of Tuesday, January 26th.

According to a release from the Northern Rockies RCMP, police heard from an employee of the Husky bulk fuel plant south of Fort Nelson that two men, one of whom is believed to be escaped convict Harley John Lay, were there claiming they had run out of gas. The employee gave them fuel and dropped off the men at their minivan.

Using this information, the RCMP immediately set up on the highway and attempted to stop the minivan when it was spotted. The van failed to stop, and officers engaged in a pursuit that included the deployment of a spike belt. Police officers stopped pursuit as the vehicle entered Fort Nelson city limits, and later found it stopped in front of a Subway restaurant on Highway 97. Upon approaching the van, the lone female occupant was arrested without incident.

Meanwhile, officers received a report that two men had allegedly stolen a truck in the area from a 16-year-old boy, who was able to retrieve an infant that was in the vehicle's car seat. After searching the area, officers found the stolen truck in a ditch at the Alaska Highway's junction with Highway 77, where Lay and another man were seen attempting to commandeer another vehicle. Several Northern Rockies RCMP officers approached the men and safely arrested them without further incident.

Peace River RCMP say no charges have been laid yet. An update will be issued when that information is available.

As many as 80% of child car seats are installed incorrectly. According to Transport Canada, 10,000 children under the age of 12 are injured in traffic accidents every year due to improper installation. A properly installed child car seat will significantly reduce the risk of injury and/or death in a collision. Safety guidelines and regulations are in place to protect children in a sudden stop or collision. Remember to properly buckle up even on short trips.
