Details Of Caribou Recovery Agreement Released

Peace FM participated in the joint press release with Honorable Doug Donaldson the Minister of Forests and Chiefs Roland Wilson and Ken Cameron at noon today on March 21, 2019. The twenty-two minute press conference officially kicked off the release of the draft of the tri-party Caribou recovery agreement and the Minister's invitation to all concerned persons and groups to respond to the agreement.

Donaldson thanked both Chiefs for their hard work and perseverance by Saulteau and West Moberly First Nations. He said that the imminent threat to the Caribou was ignored for 16 years by the former Liberal government. Chief Wilson and Chief Cameron added that today was an historic day and Wilson added that the environment was out of balance and had to be set in balance. Donaldson commended the members of both bands for not hunting caribou for the past sixteen years.

THE AGREEMENT DOES CALL FOR PROTECTED AREAS AND CLOSURES. IT WILL DEFINITELY IMPACT FOREST COMPANIES.

The first public meeting where the draft document will be discussed is on April 1st., 2019 in Fort St. John and meetings will be held Chetwynd.

Residents can provide feedback on the draft agreement until April 26th. Further details on the agreement and how to provide feedback can be found at

HOW THE WHOLE FAMILY CAN REDUCE THEIR CARBON FOOTPRINT

A carbon footprint is described as the total emissions caused by an individual, event, organization or product. It's often discussed in the news as something that we all need to reduce. In order to try and lower our ecological footprint, it is important to take small steps towards this larger goal.

We first need to measure our current impact by looking at our daily activities and how they could possibly place a strain on the environment. This includes everything that we eat, wear and drive. It is important to be a conscious consumer and take note of small habits that can make a big difference. For example, unplugging devices, even when they are powered down, can minimize the energy a household consumes.

A good way to start making these changes is to get the whole family involved in order to hold each other accountable. A fun and educational activity to do with the kids is to learn about the three R's and how the household can reduce, reuse and recycle more frequently.

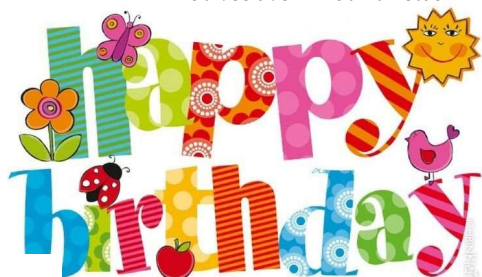

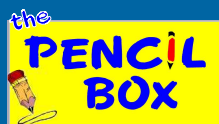

These activities aren't just for humans, because the products, food and services we use for our pets can also impact the environment. One small thing we can do is invest in eco-friendly products for our furry friends. PetSmart suggests considering poop bags made from recycled content, properly disposing of your pet's food bags and cans, as well as donating old items to shelters so they don't end up in landfills.

When it comes to helping our planet and minimizing our carbon footprint, everyone has a part to play, so make sure you are all working together.

The April rain-drops tinkle
In cuckoo-cups of gold,
And warm south winds unwrinkle
The buds the peach-boughs hold.

In countless fluted creases
The little elm-leaves show,
While white as carded fleeces
The dogwood blossoms blow.

A rosy robe is wrapping
The early red-bud trees;
But still the haws are napping,
Nor heed the honey-bees.

And still in lazy sleeping
The apple-buds are bound,
But tulip-tips are peeping
From out the garden ground.

And yonder, gayly swinging
Upon the turning vane,
A robin redbreast singing
Makes merry at the rain!
