MEALSHARE AND A&W CANADA ANNOUNCE MOMENTOUS NATIONAL PARTNERSHIP TO HELP END YOUTH HUNGER

Mealshare, a national social enterprise on a mission to help end youth hunger, is thrilled to announce its new ongoing national partnership with A&W Canada. For every Mealshare Item purchased at an A&W location, one simple healthy meal will be provided to a youth in need.

- The partnership has a goal of sharing 1,250,000 meals per year.
- All of A&W's locations are participating – 1,000 locations stretching across the entire country.
- Meals are provided through Mealshare's network of 450 local charity partners across Canada. In Chetwynd, the support will be going to Tansi Friendship Centre. 80% of Mealshare's financial support stays in local communities where the Mealshare Item was purchased, and 20% goes internationally to Save the Children.

How the program works for A&W customers:

- On 'Mealshare Mondays', customers can order a Cheddar Bacon Uncle Burger Combo and one meal will be provided to a youth in need through Mealshare.
 - Any day of the week, customers can "Make it a Mealshare" by adding $1.00 to their order. When customers do this, one meal will be provided to a youth in need through Mealshare.
 - Customers can participate in-restaurant, through drive-thru, or by using the mobile app.
- "A&W is an amazing organization and a leader in the industry through its many environmental and social initiatives," says Jeremy Bryant, Co-Founder of Mealshare. "The support of A&W restaurants will make a huge impact for Mealshare and all the youth we support across the entire country."
- "Our national partnership with Mealshare will help us make a bigger difference with our operators and their teams across the country."

Local franchisees from coast to coast are excited to be a part of this program because they've seen first-hand the needs in their communities and how these programs can provide immediate benefit and support," says Susan Senecal, Chief Executive Officer at A&W Canada. "No child should ever go hungry, especially in a country like Canada, so we're thrilled that we can be a part of this initiative."

When asked how they decide who a youth in need is, Lauren Hennessy, a Mealshare runner, said, "Mealshare partners with charities that provide support to vulnerable youth, our charity partners have their own guidelines to determine what a youth is and whether they are in need. How one of our charities defines 'youth' may be very different from another one that we support - we support individuals who still have a long future ahead of them and haven't had their shot at self-sufficiency yet. With that being said, the overwhelming majority of the individuals we help are between 1 to 12 years old. And some of our partner charities support youth up to the age of 25."

Another question asked was what a "simple meal" consists of, to which Lauren said that Mealshare does not determine the food at their partner charities. They leave that up to the experts who run those organizations to decide. Each of their partner charities strives to provide meals in accordance with the Canada Food Guide or similar standards.

I worked at a boarding kennel where people leave their dogs and cats while on vacation. One morning I had taken a cat out of his cage, and after playing with him and replenishing his food and water, I put him back in. A few minutes later, I was surprised to see the feline at my feet, since the cage doors lock automatically when they're shut. I couldn't figure out how the cat escaped, until I bent down to pick him up and spied his nametag: "Houdini."
