POST-SECONDARY RETURN TO IN-PERSON LEARNING FOLLOWS BC'S RESTART PLAN

Students, faculty and staff at B.C.'s colleges and universities are being supported to come back together for in-person learning this fall, informed by the release of new Return-to-Campus Guidelines. This follows the announcement that B.C. has transitioned to Step 3 of the Province's restart plan.

"The pandemic has made the past year and a half difficult for post-secondary students and institutions, but now, thanks to vaccines, brighter days are right around the corner," said Anne Kang, Minister of Advanced Education and Skills Training. "I am so thankful to students, faculty and staff for showcasing their professionalism, flexibility and compassion throughout the pandemic, and I am excited for students to return to in-person learning this fall."

The Return-to-Campus Guidelines are designed to parallel B.C.'s four-step restart plan. The transition period between Step 3, which took effect July 1, and the beginning of September is a crucial time, as post-secondary institutions ramp up operations and welcome back faculty, staff and students. The guidelines highlight the importance of public health measures, such as daily health checks and hand hygiene, as well as classroom logistics and on-campus student housing and dining services. For example, on-campus student housing providers can plan for close-to-full occupancy for the fall. Access to mental health supports for students, faculty and staff, Indigenous gathering places and accommodations for on campus-services are also outlined to support the transition.

"We have made excellent progress with our provincial immunization program in B.C. That, along with declining case counts and low hospitalization rates, means we can gradually and safely move ahead with our restart plan – including in-person learning at our colleges and universities," said Dr. Bonnie Henry, provincial health officer. "We will continue to carefully monitor any transmission episodes on campuses, just as we do with influenza or other respiratory illnesses this fall, to keep students, faculty and staff safe. This is something we have shown we can successfully manage in B.C."

My mother was browsing in a store when a saleswoman offered assistance. Mom admitted she didn't have anything particular in mind, and the pair started chatting. The woman quickly learned that Mom was retired.

Interested, she confessed that she, too, was considering retirement. Mom immediately started telling her how much she liked no longer working and how the saleswoman would enjoy it too. Finally, convinced by Mom's enthusiasm, she asked, "How long have you been retired?" Mom said, "This is my first day."

Health For Your Home by Linda Franklin

This column is designed to address economical discoveries that will affect your health in a positive way.

In the Garden

I like to consider my heart as a garden: it needs care, could always benefit from the removal of a few weeds, and can produce something that will be a blessing to others. Here are some aspects of your home garden that relate directly to the physical and mental health of you and your family.

- Physical Exertion: it's challenging to re-discover those garden muscles that atrophied during the long winter months! Go easy, take a week to work up to your full capacity.
- Nutrition: garden produce is superior to imported food; feeding your soil will result in more flavorful food as well as better nutrition for your family.
- Soul Food: an hour in the garden each morning that weather permits, will encourage your efforts, reveal the early harvest, and give you an object lesson to chew on.
- A Healing Place: Healing is a necessity; we'd like to think of healing as something comfortable to do, but the comfort comes after the treatment. Like a garden, hearts can grow weeds that have the potential to choke out our own happiness as well as the happiness of family members. Consider how you might improve your own state of mind as you spend time in your garden in order to more wisely connect and nourish those in your sacred circle.

If you are not favored with a garden of your own, take time for a quiet, walk to nurture and quiet your soul.

"Yesterday was my 18th birthday!" a customer said after walking into our convenience store. He then asked for some e-cigarette products and handed me his ID to prove he was indeed of age. I scanned the ID, but it came back expired. Now thoroughly deflated, he asked, "Does that mean I'm not 18?"

The new Return-to-Campus Guidelines are the result of consultations with a broad team of experts from the public post-secondary sector, including Indigenous organizations and student associations, alongside faculty and staff unions, in partnership with the ministry and public health experts from the BC Centre for Disease Control, regional health authorities and the Office of the Provincial Health Officer.

Previous versions of B.C.'s guidelines for post-secondary institutions have been adopted by other jurisdictions across Canada as a model for planning a return to on-campus instruction.

Further, post-secondary institutions will no longer be required to have a COVID-19 safety plan. Instead, institutions are developing communicable disease plans to reduce the risk of all respiratory illnesses, including COVID-19. The goal for the fall is to transition back to normal institutional policies and guidance on occupational health and safety.
