Covid-19 Testing at the Canadian Border

As the U.S. reopens its land border, some experts say the Canadian government should consider scrapping its costly COVID-19 PCR test requirement for fully vaccinated travellers — particularly for short cross-border trips.

Instead, they suggest Ottawa could look at using the less expensive, faster and more convenient antigen tests, which are used to screen travellers in the U.S., but are also less reliable.

"Wouldn't it make more sense to have [an antigen test] done at the border rapidly? You can get one done in 15 minutes or even faster ... rather than a 72 hour-old [PCR] test that's sometimes logistically difficult [and] expensive to get," said Amesh Adalja, an infectious disease physician and a senior scholar at the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security in Baltimore.

"From the scientific standpoint, the antigen tests make more sense," he said, pointing to the fact antigen tests are done much closer to the time of the crossing. "So I think that the U.S. policy is actually a better one."

Ottawa is facing pressure to nix pricey COVID test rule for fully vaccinated travellers The U.S. land border is open. Here's what you need to know Currently, recreational travellers entering Canada must show proof of a negative molecular test — such as a PCR test — taken within 72 hours of their departing flight or planned arrival at the border. But those tests can be expensive, running up to $300, and can take up to 24 hours — or longer — for travellers to get their results.

It's particularly prohibitive for families, as the molecular tests are required for everyone over the age of five. That means for a family of four, it can add $1,000 to the cost of a trip.

In Flanders fields
the poppies blow

Between the crosses, row on row,

That mark our place; and in the sky

The larks, still bravely singing, fly Scarce heard amid the guns below

Winter Parking and District Roads Information

Winter is coming and snow removal is always a concern. When removing snow from your property it is required that the snow pile must remain on your property and not be pushed across the roads and onto district property or other private property.

The District of Chetwynd is committed to keeping all our roads safe for all citizens. Vehicles parked in a manner that interferes with effective snow removal may be removed, as regulated in the Streets and Traffic Regulation Bylaw # 909, 2009 section 5.13

A full list of the District of Chetwynd Bylaws can be found on our website at www.gochetwynd.com under the heading Municipal Office/Bylaws and follow the link.

The District of Chetwynd's Snow Clearing Policy, snow plowing will begin after 50mm of snow accumulation, roads will be plowed on a priority basis and residential streets will be plowed within 48 hours following the subsidence of the snowfall. If vehicles are parked on residential streets following a snow fall, the road will not be cleared until all vehicles have been removed and it has been deemed safe by the District.
