British Columbians now face $25K fine, jail time if they are ignoring public health orders over COVID-19

People who ignore public health orders, including a ban on large gatherings, can now be fined upwards of $25,000. Jail time is also possible, the province said Thursday.

The provincial government has taken a number of "unprecedented" steps to ensure people obey public health orders, stop hoarding vital supplies and secure the flow of essential goods into B.C.'s stores and hospitals during the COVID-19 crisis.

The province is also cracking down on the black market by prohibiting the resale of food, medical supplies, personal protective equipment, cleaning products and other essential supplies. People who ignore the order can be fined up to $10,000, jailed for one year, or both.

The provincial government has taken a number of "unprecedented" steps to ensure people obey public health orders, stop hoarding vital supplies and secure the flow of essential goods into B.C.'s stores and hospitals during the COVID-19 crisis.

While this is for sure a very scary time. Mostly we are all just expected to use caution and common sense. If you don't need to be out and about...don't. Don't take your whole family into stores, if you can avoid it. And most of all, be safe.

Boosts to emergency funding a welcome relief for students

BC Government investing $3.5 million in emergency funding for public post-secondary students

NEW WESTMINSTER—Students are applauding a $3.5 million investment, announced today by the Minister of Advanced Education, Skills and Training, that will help provide emergency support for students in BC.

"Students and their families are in a time of financial insecurity like we have never seen before," said Tanysha Klassen, Chairperson of the BC Federation of Students. "This investment in emergency funds will help to ensure rent can be paid and food can be on the table during these troubling times."

Students often work in precarious, low-wage jobs with only a few shifts a week between busy study schedules; they are highly represented in industries that have laid off many workers due to pandemic responses. With summer employment now unlikely, and other avenues of emergency relief not available, many students and their families are entering into a period of intense financial insecurity.

Recognizing the immense need of students, several students' unions in BC have also committed money for emergency relief – in some cases as much as $100,000.

"With layoffs, physical distancing, and classes suddenly being completed online, students and their families have a lot to worry about right now," said Klassen. "Providing additional relief will go a long way to help those in need be able to stay focused on being successful in their studies."

According to the government's announcement, the $3.5 million in funding can be used for a broad range of expenses that students find themselves under pressure to pay, such as food, rent, and equipment necessary for the new reality of online and remote learning. The funding will be administered through financial aid offices at BC's 25 public post-secondary institutions.

The BC Federation of Students represents over 170,000 students at 15 universities, colleges, and institutes in every region of BC. Together, these students advocate for a well-funded system of post-secondary education in BC that is affordable and accessible for all students.

Bob Zimmer to donate Pay Increase

FORT ST. JOHN - Bob Zimmer, Member of Parliament for Prince George-Peace River-Northern Rockies, issued the following statement regarding the April 1, 2020 legislated pay increase for Members of Parliament.

"The legislation giving Members of Parliament an annual pay increase was passed in 2005, well before I was a Member of Parliament. Since first being elected in 2011, I have never voted for a pay raise.

"It is up to the government to bring forward legislation to make changes to the annual increase should they do so when the House of Commons resumes sitting again.

Following the global economic downturn in 2008, it was the previous Conservative government that put in place an MP pay freeze that lasted for three years.

"While individual Members of Parliament cannot stop the pay raise from going forward, we can decide what to do with the money we receive.

"I know people throughout the region are hurting right now which is why I am donating any increase I receive to a local church that is helping out our community during this difficult time. I will continue to support local charities as I always have."

- to have a healthy sewer system by not flushing anything except toilet paper down the toilet;
- * Paper towel,

 - * Kitchen waste,

 - * Dental floss
 - * Cotton balls

These items are not good for the sewer system, no matter what the packaging of those items may tell us!

None of us want a sewer backup during these sensitive times, so please remember:

don't flush anything down the toilet but toilet paper.
